

June 2017 Reflection

We have extended our arts and crafts making it a permanent corner in the room where the children can have access to it easily and anytime. Painting is still one of the popular go to at the moment and we have added Playdough as well as clay making which the children have all seemed to enjoy, thus adding and bringing us new ideas for more sensory play. They are enjoying getting their hands dirty and aren't afraid to try it all after watching educators and their friends giving it a go.

We are also adding group time and extending it for longer periods of times as the children seem to be able to sit and focus a lot longer and are thoroughly enjoying our music and movement always asking for more songs once it finishes. We're hoping to extend on this and add a whole genre of music, more sign language songs, and action songs and add more complex books with themes that tie in with the children's interest and milestones.

Links to the National Quality Standards: Quality area 1 Educational Program and Practice and TRCC Philosophy

